ITALIANS' Expansion Asked

Means Fought Speed Output Of Warplanes

War Secretary Stimson Declares Expansion Hits Production Of Planes Needed By Britain and U.S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—War Secretary Henry Stimson announced today the United States War department had appealed to the priorities board to halt expansion of commercial air services on the ground it would interfere with the war plane production for American and British armed forces.

At a press conference Stimson said the Douglas Aircraft Company is delivering planes to commercial lines at the rate of 12 a month, although it had 60 days behind schedule in delivering the test plane for an army order for 180 die bombers.

BRITAIN NEEDS MORE SHIPPING SAYS MINISTER

Rate Of Building Does Not Make Up For Losses Cross Straits

LONDON, Nov. 26.—(CP)—Ronald Cross, minister of shipping, said in a broadcast tonight that the rate at which we are building ships now does not make up for our losses.

He said that while British ships were working at top speed, the merchant vessels part of the navy's facilities must be built, repaired and replaced.

LOOKING TO U.S. "We are therefore anxious," he said, "to get more ships built over and over and are looking primarily to the shipyards of the United States, since by themselves the resources of the Empire are not sufficient."

"We must have ships—our life line and the lifeline which hang on our having ships are so tremendous that we cannot make too sure of our shipping position in the months and years which may pass before we have made victory secure. We must have a safety margin."

Mr. Cross said losses along the coast of the last war were 20,000 tons weekly until just afterwards 60,000 tons weekly due to the enemy's control of the coasts of France, the low countries and Norway.

IMPORT POWER CUT "The number of merchantmen flying the British flag was the same as at the outbreak of war, largely thanks to the acquisition of 1,000,000 tons of Allied vessels, Mr. Cross said. "The power to import goods is much reduced because we can no longer import iron ore from Sweden or much from Norway, Belgium and France, or food from Holland."

"All these things have to be looked from across the world," he said.

New Campaign De Gaulle, Rottmer, Is Mapped

Premier Churchill and French General Study Plan To Win Over African Possessions From Vichy

BY FREDERICK KUH
 LONDON, Nov. 26.—(BUP)—A new campaign to win French North Africa and Tunisia to the side of Great Britain and the "Free France" movement is being planned, it was believed today.

First hand information was given Prime Minister Winston Churchill and other British leaders by Gen. Charles De Gaulle, head of the "Free France" movement. He returned to London over the weekend after a three-month absence marked by his failure to win over Dakar, French West Africa, but by victory in French Equatorial Africa. He will remain in London three weeks before returning to Africa.

Surviving the war, in a broad sense, last night, De Gaulle said that while Italian armies in Libya, Egypt and Ethiopia were inactive and Italian armies were retreating before the Greeks in Albania, the French people in France can now realize and not without reason that their armies have been saved of a glorious part in the eventual victory for the free world.

PATRIOTISM GROWING "They can now realize the part of paramount importance which the French Empire's air force and fleet would have played in Africa and Syria had they not been sold to their enemies by the betrayal of the armistice," he said. "The French people are growing and its position will show its weight into the final liberation of France. It is this position which we are taking up and we are going to take up arms. Let us evaluate this sacred position and hasten the day of victory."

All Units Of Army Seeking Escape To Sea

Capture Of Fascist Base Of Pogradetz By Greek Forces After Fierce Hand-To-Hand Fighting Reported

SALONIKA, Greece, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Reports from various parts of the Albanian battlefield indicated today that all Italian units were seeking to turn toward the Adriatic sea in their retreat from the Greeks.

Winter took a biting grip on Albania and Macedonia amid reports that the Italians were withdrawing in all sectors. Cold rain drenched the valleys and lowlands; snow fell on the mountains, slowing up military operations on most fronts.

By HAROLD BEST
 BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Nov. 26.—(BUP)—Frontier dispatches said today that Greek forces had captured the Italian base at Pogradetz, near the Albania-Yugoslavia frontier and 20 miles north of Koriza. The dispatches said that Pogradetz had fallen at 10 a.m. today. (In London British military quarters also said that the Greeks had taken Pogradetz.)

Dispatches said that the Greek capture of Pogradetz followed fierce hand-to-hand fighting. It was reported from Struga, across the border in Yugoslavia, that more than 300 Greeks were killed and 700 wounded in the battle for Pogradetz.

Italian casualties were reported three times as great as those suffered by the Greeks.

Italy reported defeat at Pogradetz, were said to be retreating northwards in the direction of Monastir, on the western shore of Lake Ohrid, and on the main road to Bitola.

It was reported that the Greeks last night advanced towards Pogradetz, and occupied the village of Lenina. They were said to have continued their advance this morning, and were reported to have reached the town of Pogradetz.

The streets of Pogradetz were reported strewn and in some places blocked by dead and dying after Greek bayonet charges. Even while the Italians were retreating towards Pogradetz, it was reported the Greeks entered the town and raised their flag on the post office and prefectural buildings.

Reports captured and that the Greeks captured five Italian officers, 400 soldiers, two tanks, two heavy guns, five trucks, five machine guns and huge quantities of equipment.

PRESS BARON, ROTHERMERE, IS DEAD IN SOUTH

British Publisher Dies In Bermuda Following Illness

LONDON, Nov. 26.—(CP)—The Press Association announced that Lord Rothermere, 72, British publisher, died today in Bermuda. Lord Rothermere several years had headed over the Daily Mail and most of his other newspapers. He was the son of the late Lord Rothermere, who succeeded to the title created for his father in 1914.

Earlier this year Lord Rothermere had undertaken a mission to the United States on behalf of his fellow publishers. He was in Bermuda in connection with the purchase of a ship.

HEALTH FAILS "While on this mission Lord Rothermere's health began to fail," he was reported to have said. "His condition improved, but he was unable to resume his duties."

Lord Rothermere was closely associated with the career of his brother, Lord Northcliffe, who in the latter died in 1927, and together the two brothers were responsible for the changes in British newspaper publishing.

During the last year of the First Great War Lord Rothermere was secretary for air and under his administration the Royal Flying Corps and the Royal Naval Air Service were merged into the Royal Air Force.

INTERESTS IN CANADA Lord Rothermere was a strong supporter of the Canadian cause in the large pulp and paper industry in Newfoundland, and business connections in Canada.

While Lord Rothermere in early years was mainly concerned with the financial end of his business, he was also a keen supporter of the Canadian cause in the large pulp and paper industry in Newfoundland, and business connections in Canada.

EARLY ACTION ON FINANCIAL AID UNLIKELY

"Impractical, Premature," Says Senator George On Proposal

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Immediate legislative action to speed Britain's financial assistance was described today by Senator Walter E. George, Democrat, Georgia, chairman of the Senate Committee on Finance, as "impractical, premature."

"I believe it is impractical to secure action here, and somewhat premature," he said in commenting on a pending resolution by Senator William H. King, Democrat, Utah, which would clear the way for granting credits to Britain.

He said that the state department, Senator George said, had indicated that it was in close harmony with the State Department's policy, but that it was not yet clear what action would be taken.

Italian Blitzkrieg Stood Off By Lone Regiment Of Greeks

By HENRY T. GORRELL
 ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 26.—(AP)—A Greek regimental doctor, Lieut. Theodor Hadjioannou, whom I met on a 20-hour train ride from Salonika to Athens, told me that his regiment had stood off the Italian blitzkrieg in the Pindus mountains for four days while the Greek high command organized its campaign.

"Until reinforcements arrived, after four days, the regiment fought without food or sleep and without rest," he said.

"Some of the men had high fever and were very weak, but we continued to fight," he said.

"The doctor said that men from the regiment charged one Italian tank and destroyed it by setting it on fire with a flamethrower."

"Reaching their objective in a storm of bullets and supporting all the while."

Premier's Son IS CHEERED IN MAIDEN SPEECH

Lieut. Randolph Churchill Raps Those Concerned About War Aims

LONDON, Nov. 26.—(CP)—Lieut. Randolph Churchill, the prime minister's son who was elected to parliament from Preston in a by-election several weeks ago, made his maiden speech in the House of Commons today. His father sat with his back to him, perhaps so as not to embarrass him with a paternal eye.

The House cheered as young Churchill said, "We are not in a position to make any statement on the events of the day, but we are in a position to make a statement on the events of the day."

To members who frequently inquire why we do not make the initiative, early in the war, the speaker said, "We are not in a position to make any statement on the events of the day, but we are in a position to make a statement on the events of the day."

"This same offensive spirit prevails in the army, but there is no comprehension of how slender have been our resources in the past and an understanding of the consequences of going off on half-cock."

Make It A Habit

The rather disappointing showing that has been made in the sale of war savings certificates and stamps—less than $23,000,000 in all Canada up to the end of October—suggests that most of the buying has been done in a casual or spasmodic way; that not enough persons have made the regular purchase of these matter of routine. If a half million Canadians had done this, the total sales would be far greater.

System counts in financing. As in all the other efforts of life, a $4 certificate bought each month will in the course of a year help the war effort almost as much as the purchase of a $50 bond. The purchase of a $4 certificate at this rate, would supply $48,000,000 of war money in twelve months. That sum would buy 1120 Spitfires, enough to blow the Italian air force out of the sky, and Greece, and start the tide of victory rolling up from the Balkans.

Systematic bombing is what stopped the Nazi invasion at the shores of France and the Low Countries. Systematic lending will accomplish corresponding result on the financial front.

A Champion Cause

Sir James Craig, as the world has known him, has been promoted to the rank of knight since the establishment of the government in 1931. His death was undoubtedly hastened by war worries. It is particularly notable that he was not permitted to live to see the victory which he devoted his great talents, granite-hard resolution, and driving force.

Under his leadership Northern Ireland made instant decision when the Axis forces were aimed at the destruction of the British Empire. The part he played in the defense of the island is important because of the fighting men it has supplied, and also because its ports and airfields have been the bases from which British naval and air forces operated to protect British and neutral shipping in the eastern Atlantic, where the sea lanes converge.

This in considerable measure lessens the handicap imposed upon these forces by the refusal of Mr. De Gaulle to permit the use of airfields and ports on the coast of Eire. But for these bases in Northern Ireland, scores more of merchant ships would have been sunk, hundreds more merchant seamen would have been lost, and the British and Canadian merchant supplies more seriously menaced.

Sir James is dead, but his memory lives. The people who so long honored him because of his fidelity to the cause of Imperial unity draw inspiration from his example to fight until that cause is triumphant and the British and all other democracies again dwell in tranquility.

An arrangement was made to fight to preserve their freedom, and wherever it was mourned, the passing of this stalwart will bring deep regret.

A Good Move

It must have been good news to the people of the city generally that representative of war service organizations and welfare societies are working toward the establishment of a Community Chest in Edmonton, and that the movement is funded to two per cent. Elsewhere there has been a quite general attempt to consolidate money-raising efforts in this way, and the arrangement seems to have been made wherever it has been tried. That it would work well in Edmonton there is no reason to doubt. Very much to be commended.

The root of the matter is that the public have grown tired, to the point of being resentful, at the endless procession of appeals for money. Not that the movement is not genuine, or that any particular cause may not be deserving of support. The change would be to have the money raised all the amount of money that must be raised in a year by popular subscription; everybody understands that. But it would do away with the very real and understandable irritation caused by incessant demands.

This irritation is not at all unreasonable. In part it is due to knowledge that the present procedure is not businesslike. Where many appeals are made, no canvas can be thorough and only a few are solicited. When it is known that appeals will be made in short intervals for this, and that all other thing, the individual gives along in thought of demands to come, and there fore gives sparingly.

If the organizations can get together, total up their needs and present a single budget, the probability is that each will give more money as it requires, the collecting will be done with less effort, and the canvas can be broadened to reach practically every person in the community.

"Europe Against England?"

Her Hitler has dropped another mine in his basket, with all the pomp and ceremony which marked the landing of Hungary and Rumania.

All three countries have long been under his orders, their territory occupied by his troops to whatever extent they were available, their nominal rulers obedient to him on penalty of deposition, imprisonment or murder. Their inclusion in the Axis countries is a nominal change of status, signifying nothing beyond their helplessness.

The alternative for each of them was the fate which overtook Holland, Belgium and France. Had one of them refused to sign when ordered to do so, tanks and airplanes might have visited upon its people the ravages that fell upon the Netherlands. When the official exponent of Nazi diplomacy celebrates the enforced collapse of these three states by proclaiming that "Europe today stands against England," it takes in a good deal of territory. Attention is thereby invited to the facts that the Axis requires some obvious modifications of the claim.

When the shivering Slavonian representative has inscribed their names on the list, five European states had become members of the Axis. But three of them were only honorary members, and unpledged to become anything more. Two only, Germany and Italy, are actually in the field "against England."

It is a pretty narrow basis on which to proclaim a continental merger, has been formed to destroy Britain and make Hitler the over-lord of Europe.

It is not a narrow basis, the people who inhabit the state, the basis is narrower still. Judging from the way every symptom of criticism is suppressed, the Fuehrer expects not more than fifty per cent of the people of Germany are positively "against England," and Signor Mussolini is conscious of a corresponding situation in Italy. He has occupied countries that is wildly extravagant to suppose ten per cent of their inhabitants are "against England."

The outlook at Berlin must be gloomy when the co-existence of a permanent terror-stricken small states is heralded to the German people as completing a line-up of all Europe "against England."

Canadians are going to have to drive this year model cars next year, listen to the present style of radio, and do the family washing with the machine of this year's vintage. If they feel aggrieved, that will help to sharpen their zeal to smother Hitler.

While the money is being poured out to be devoted to that highly desirable educational objective.

Education of these three from all the provinces except Alberta met at Ottawa and discussed a campaign to bring Canadian into greater national cohesion.

The influence of the press, radio, motion picture houses, churches and schools. They should have put the schools at the head of the list, not the tail end. None of the other agencies named has more signally failed to have had the schools at the head of the list, not the tail end. None of the other agencies named has more signally failed to have had the schools at the head of the list, not the tail end.

Whatsoever took place at the conference, it was speedily announced afterwards that Germany had endeavored to pull her weaker sister into the mire in the New World.

If Germany had lend a hand, this attitude may be the signal for the landing of Hitler's army in the New World. British aid has been confined to naval warfare and the services of non-combatant technical experts.

It is felt that nine million Greeks needed any help in beating back the forces of forty-five million Italians.

At the same time, the Greeks may be slightly changed. If Germany comes in the odds will become so tremendous that Greece may accept foreign aid without embarrassment.

It appears to be well-known among her neighbors that Italy, fighting at five-to-one is at a disadvantage. In other words, her handicap in military competition is rather shamefully high.

Meanwhile, the news that Germany may take a hand in the Greek affair has stirred up the Greek people and the Greek army to get her troops on the scene of battle.

Bulgaria has created a difficulty by refusing to join the Axis, to join the Axis.

It has been said, last week, that Bulgaria had private advice from Russia concerning her attitude on commitment with Germany or Italy.

At the same time, she received a blunt warning from Turkey that she should not take a hand in the Greek affair.

It is a fact that Lord Wellesley will make a speech for the Chamber for the blindfolded made at the end of the handling of operations in South Africa.

Mr. Kruger was well received at Paris. The "newspaper" was reported to have refused to accept the appointment of command-in-chief unless he is given a seat in the cabinet.

The report of the minister of agriculture shows that this year 180,000 acres of land were used to wheat in Alberta, against 128,000 last year.

Frank Ford, K.C., deputy attorney general of Saskatchewan, is to join the law firm of Emery, Newell and Bolton.
